

RESEARCH SCHOOLS

Choosing a school is one of the most important decisions parents make. Each parent and child must decide which school is best for them. This decision is best made by visiting prospective schools, researching the schools via their web page and talking to teachers, children and administrators. There are also resources that can help!

Resources

Choosing a School for Your Child

A guide provided by the US Dept of Education with tips and resources for parents

Great Schools

Compare K-12 school ratings nationwide to find the best schools. View parent ratings, reviews and test scores and choose the right preschool, elementary, middle or high school for public or private education.

School Quest

Specifically designed by MCEC for military families, this website allows you to browse school options and visit their online library.

Maryland Report Card

Review Maryland schools state assessment scores, school demographics and much more.

Students at the Center

This website for parents and guardians provides specific guidance to support their children's academic success through transitions. It includes resources to support families' needs, choosing a school, and effective advocacy.